For the Polynesian.

My Dear Sir:—Many were the reflections that filled my mind, the other evening, as I returned from my visit to Kula. Some of these I shall send thee leaving you to decide how much point and importance they have, and then to deal with them as you in your wisdom editorial, shall see fit—a privilege which, if I mistake not, gentleman of your profession claim.

I could not help reflecting on the benefit of the Sabbath to the poor, not of course excluding the rich. It is an unspeakable blessing even to the laboring ox. I felt my heart dilate with pleasure, on seeing these faithful servants of man, grazing around on this day of rest, or lying down quietly, renewing their strength for the toil of the coming week. The Sabbath! what a blessing did the creator, wise and good, confer on man when He gave him one day in seven as a day of holy resting from the toil of six days fatigue. Were there no Sabbath in Kula, the great price which is now being paid for potatoes would prove the greatest curse. Scarcely an ox or mare would be left in all the vicinity. With the rest of this sweet day, not a few of these animals have already died of fatigue, as I shall notice in another reflection. Without the benefit of this day the bones of the rest of them would bleach on the dust and lava of Kula; and many a man too would lay the foundation of his own death by excessive toil. This you will easily understand, when I assure you that the temptation of obtaining $4.50 per barrel for potatoes at the sea is so strong that oxen, horses, mules, and donkeys, are in requisition day and night; and those who have none of these animals, make beasts of burden of themselves. Blessed be God for the Sabbath, the poor man's friend. Then the quietness of the day. Sacred stillness, broken only by the voice of prayer and praise. Oh that all would sacredly observe this day of rest, and thus secure their temporal and eternal well being.

2. Obedience to the commands of God, I reflected, is highly advantageous to man on earth, in other words, piety is the highest economy.

I need not tell you who hath said, "Godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is"—no less than "of that which is to come." What I saw and heard in Kula illustrates the correctness of this declaration. Who are the men that are prospering in this place, now that God is allowing them to reap a golden harvest? You will say, of course, those who are industrious. True, but to go a step backward, let me ask, who are diligent at such a season as this? I will tell you, sir. They are the men who fear God,—reverence the Sabbath, —go to the house of prayer,—read daily a portion of the book of God, and find time to pray morning and evening; in a word, the consistently pious men and women from Lahaina, and Waialua, and Hamakua, and from other places.

These are the men who have learned that "prayer and provender hinder not man's journey."

They believe too that "there is that scattereth and yet increaseth;" and they "lend to the Lord" by giving to His poor, and by doing what they can to spread His precious gospel. And watering others, they are themselves watered. They increase in wealth these days quite as fast as it is safe for them to do, in my opinion.

But others than these may be found in Kula.

Some of them are members of the church of which I am pastor. But I did not see them in the house of worship, and on inquiry, I learned that they have ceased attending on religious ordinances. And how do they prosper in their worldly concerns? I asked, "Are they industrious, enterprising, improving this golden opportunity of enriching themselves?" "Not at all," is the reply. "They do just nothing at all, are as indolent and poor as ever." Exactly so. Just as I suspected. They are faithless to their vows, and God leaves them to eat the fruit of their doings. They cannot find time to pray
